Order of terms. These terms supplement the Eventfrog General Terms and Conditions accepted during ticket purchase. Eventfrog's terms prevail for use of the platform, ordering, payment, ticket issuance, FlexTicket cancellation and refund processing. These InVeVol terms govern only the additional conditions of the event itself.

1. Scope and acceptance

1.1 These Supplementary Event Terms apply to the purchase and use of tickets for the event identified above and form part of the agreement between InVeVol GmbH (the "Organizer") and the ticket purchaser. A person attending with a ticket purchased by another person is also required to comply with the participation provisions of these terms.

1.2 The Eventfrog General Terms and Conditions and the conditions displayed for the selected ticket category continue to apply. If these terms conflict with Eventfrog's terms on a matter governed by Eventfrog, Eventfrog's terms prevail. Mandatory law always remains unaffected.

1.3 The agreement is concluded when the purchase is completed and confirmed through Eventfrog. The version of these terms presented for acceptance at the time of purchase applies.

2. Event service

2.1 The ticket provides admission to the event and participation in the programme described on the Eventfrog event page. The intended format includes short expert inputs, a facilitated executive dialogue, a synthesis and networking drinks. The working language is English unless stated otherwise.

2.2 The ticket does not include an individual assessment, written report, participant list, slide deck, implementation support, follow-up meeting or other deliverable unless this is expressly stated in the ticket description.

2.3 The Organizer may make reasonable changes to the agenda, sequence, speakers, facilitators, timing, format or room where the overall purpose and value of the event remain substantially unchanged. Such reasonable changes do not create a right to a refund.

3. Professional exchange - no consultancy mandate

3.1 The event is a facilitated professional and peer exchange for general information and discussion. Its content does not constitute individual consulting, scientific, clinical, regulatory, legal, investment, medical or other professional advice.

3.2 Ticket purchase and attendance do not establish a client relationship or consultancy mandate with InVeVol GmbH, Walter Science, the venue, a speaker or another participant. Any subsequent advisory or project engagement requires a separate written agreement.

3.3 No specific insight, decision, trial outcome, regulatory result, business opportunity, return on investment or other outcome is promised or guaranteed. Contributions may reflect individual perspectives and are not necessarily independently verified or endorsed by the Organizer.

3.4 Participants remain responsible for evaluating the relevance, accuracy and applicability of information to their own circumstances and for obtaining appropriate professional advice before taking action.

4. Tickets, participant cancellation and refunds

4.1 Ticket prices, payment methods, fees and the refund status of each ticket category are those displayed by Eventfrog during checkout. Regular tickets marked as non-refundable cannot be refunded for a change of plans, inability to attend, late arrival or non-attendance, subject to mandatory law and Clause 5.

4.2 A FlexTicket may be cancelled only through the Eventfrog process and no later than the cancellation deadline displayed during purchase, configured for this event as 48 hours before the event begins. The refund amount, FlexTicket surcharge and any processing fee are governed and processed by Eventfrog under its applicable terms.

4.3 InVeVol does not grant additional participant-initiated cancellation or refund rights outside the Eventfrog ticket conditions. Tickets are personal where identified as such in the ticket shop. A transfer or name change requires the Organizer's prior written approval.

5. Cancellation, postponement and events beyond control

5.1 If the Organizer cancels the event, registered purchasers will be informed and the event ticket price will be handled through Eventfrog in accordance with the applicable booking conditions and mandatory law.

5.2 If the event is postponed, the ticket will normally remain valid for the replacement date. The Organizer will communicate any option and reasonable deadline for requesting a refund if the purchaser cannot attend the replacement date.

5.3 The Organizer may cancel, postpone or adapt the event where necessary because of illness, venue unavailability, official measures, safety concerns, transport disruption, technical failure or another circumstance beyond reasonable control. To the extent permitted by law, the Organizer does not reimburse travel, accommodation, loss of working time or other third-party costs.

6. Participation and conduct

6.1 The event is invitation-based and designed for active, respectful and non-promotional exchange. Participants must comply with reasonable instructions of the Organizer and venue, respect other participants and refrain from disruptive conduct, aggressive selling, unlawful activity or conduct that compromises safety or the quality of the dialogue.

6.2 The Organizer may refuse entry or require a participant to leave where a ticket is invalid or where the participant materially breaches these obligations. No refund is due following removal for a material breach, to the extent permitted by law.

7. Chatham House Rule and confidential information

7.1 The dialogue follows the Chatham House Rule: participants may use information received during the session, but may not reveal the identity or affiliation of the speaker or another participant in connection with that information without permission.

7.2 The event does not create a non-disclosure agreement. Participants must not disclose confidential, proprietary, patient-identifiable, personal or otherwise protected information. Each participant is responsible for deciding what they may lawfully share.

7.3 The Organizer will communicate the participation rule but cannot guarantee compliance by every participant and, to the extent permitted by law, is not responsible for an unauthorized disclosure by another participant.

8. Insights, intellectual property and recording

8.1 Participants retain rights in their pre-existing materials and original contributions. Participation does not transfer ownership of confidential information, inventions, methodologies, trademarks, copyrighted materials or other intellectual property.

8.2 The Organizer may use general, non-confidential insights from the dialogue in aggregated or anonymized form for an event summary, future dialogues and the development of methodologies or services. No participant or organization will be quoted, named or otherwise attributed without prior consent.

8.3 Event materials remain the property of their respective authors and are provided for personal professional reference only. Audio or video recording, photography of presentation content, reproduction or distribution requires the prior permission of the Organizer and the relevant author.

9. Personal data and event photography

9.1 InVeVol may process registration and contact data as necessary to administer the event, communicate with participants, manage access and fulfil legal obligations. Eventfrog processes data under its own privacy information and terms. Registration does not by itself constitute consent to unrelated marketing.

9.2 Event atmosphere photographs may be taken for documentation and communication. Participants who do not wish to appear should inform the Organizer before the event or upon arrival; reasonable measures will be taken to exclude them. Close-up portraits, interviews or testimonial recordings require separate permission.

10. Venue and allocation of responsibility

10.1 InVeVol GmbH is the Organizer and contracting party for the ticketed event and is responsible for the organization and programme within its control. Unless expressly identified as a co-organizer in the Eventfrog event details, Walter Klybeck, Walter Science, the premises operator, sponsors, speakers and other contributors do not become parties to the ticket purchase agreement merely because their name, logo, premises or contribution appears in connection with the event.

10.2 Responsibility for the premises, building access, infrastructure, facilities and venue services remains with the person or entity responsible for and exercising control over the relevant area or service. Participants must comply with venue rules, safety instructions and reasonable directions from venue personnel.

10.3 To the extent permitted by law, InVeVol is not responsible for damage arising solely from the condition or operation of the premises, the acts or omissions of the venue operator or another third party, or circumstances outside InVeVol's reasonable control. This does not exclude responsibility where and to the extent that InVeVol itself breaches a contractual or legal duty.

11. Liability

11.1 To the extent permitted by applicable law, InVeVol is not liable for decisions made in reliance on event content; statements, acts or omissions of speakers or participants; indirect or consequential loss; loss of profit, revenue, opportunity or data; or loss of or damage to personal belongings.

11.2 Nothing in these terms excludes or limits liability that cannot lawfully be excluded or limited, including liability for wilful misconduct or gross negligence. Rights and responsibilities relating to Eventfrog or another third-party service remain governed by that provider's applicable terms.

12. Final provisions

12.1 If a provision is invalid or unenforceable, the remaining provisions continue to apply. The invalid provision will be interpreted or replaced only to the extent necessary to achieve a lawful result closest to its intended purpose.

12.2 These terms are governed by Swiss law. Subject to mandatory jurisdiction rules, the courts at the registered seat of InVeVol GmbH have jurisdiction.

12.3 Questions concerning these terms or the event may be addressed to info@invevol.com.
